FRENCH CRUISER PROTET IN PORT

A Leisurely Trip From Tahiti In Heavy Waters

CONSUL VIZZAVONA IS FIRST TO WELCOME HER

SALUTED ON BOARDING — WARSHIP DOES HONOR TO STARS AND STRIPES — A MERRY CHRISTMAS EXPECTED.

The French cruiser Protet, Adegard, commanding, arrived on port early this morning after a leisurely cruise from Tahiti, and came in about 9 o'clock. Owing to the heavy southerly swell, she swung around with some difficulty but finally came to a safe anchorage in Naval Row. Consul Vizzavona, who had been expecting the vessel for several days, was one of the first aboard and was given the usual salute due his rank upon retiring. The flag of the United States had been previously saluted.

The Protet did not present an inviting appearance on deck when she came to anchor, but that was not her fault. As the vessel was putting her place in Naval Row a nasty drizzle came up from the south. The men obliged to work in this and, although they seemed to take kindly to it, it was anything but pleasant.

Everything aboard the Protet is French. Even the "moor" of the crew on deck has a decided French accent. Only a few men aboard understand English, and some of them evidently picked up what they do know from the kanakans of Tahiti.

Captain Adegard has been to Honolulu a number of times and has many old acquaintances here. Most of the other officers were here on the occasion of the Protet's last visit, and will be remembered by Honolulu people.

From Honolulu the Protet will proceed in about six days to San Francisco and other Coast points.

The officers of the Protet are as follows:

Commander, Adegar.

Lieut. Commander, Carre.

Lieutenants: Moysan, Vinson and Schultz.

Sub-Lieutenants: Chouronde and Pillet.

Midshipmen: Hutspsule, Decond, Grivel, Pavot and Blanchet.

Engineers: Chevenot, Chake, Valton and Brunel.

Paymaster, Uncops.

Doctor, Michel.

The officers of the Protet are looking forward to a merry Christmas season in Honolulu. They had planned to have a big reception on board tomorrow afternoon, but the bad weather and promise of continued showers has rendered that program impracticable. However, a reception will be held some time next week, to which the 400 of Honolulu will be invited. Consul Vizzavona is also planning a reception to the officers, to be held at one of the hotels.

IWAHLANI AT MIDWAY

The cable company chartered the Iwalani to take supplies to the station on Midway.
